EPA on Trial for Ignoring Fluoride as a Children's Brain Toxin

by Leo Cashman, Director of DAMS (Dental Amalgam Mercury Solutions and Board member of National Health Freedom Coalition)

The US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is on trial in a federal district court in San Francisco over its failure and unwillingness to classify fluoride as being toxic to children's brains and impairing children's ability to learn.

The stakes are high as fluoride products are currently being added to the drinking water of 200 million Americans and fluoridation is promoted in fifteen other countries. Further, fluoride, a powerfully toxic germ-killer, is used in most toothpastes sold in the US, and it is touted as being safe and effective in fluoride gels, rinses and varnishes that are widely used in dentistry.

The American Dental Association (ADA) is a bastion of fluoride promotion. ADA has long forged a close partnership with the US Centers for Disease Control (CDC), the nation's active fluoride promoter. The CDC works through state health departments which it heavily funds. CDC touts its water fluoridation efforts as "one of the greatest health achievements of the 20th century," although its critics, including independent scientists, have long criticized fluoridation as a scam and a boondoggle. Now the vast edifice of fluoride promotion and fluoride use is being challenged by increasingly overwhelming evidence that fluoride, and especially prenatal exposures to fluoride, damages children's intelligence. It triples the incidence of "inattentive behavior and cognitive problems" according to Canadian researcher Morteza Bashash, PhD, co-author of several of the studies. “The symptoms of ADHD often persist into adulthood and can be impairing in daily life,” says Christine Till, PhD, another co-author of key studies.

Attorney Diane Miller Presenting at Trinity Health Freedom Expo!

The Trinity Expo is going Virtual October 2020! Trinity Health Freedom Expo is an amazing gathering of experts and advocates for natural and alternative health, bringing dozens of educational lectures to the public about natural health and ways to protect our health freedom.

Diane Miller, Director of Law and Public Policy for NHFC and NHFA, will be presenting and informing listeners about the right of healing practitioners to provide services and information to their clients. What are the barriers for you to have access to the practitioners that are right for you? What are the solutions that are already increasing access?

Lobbying challenges during a Pandemic: Two more Safe Harbor Practitioners Exemption bills
close to passage

Jerri Johnson, NHFA President and Rosanne Lindsay, NHFC President at the Wisconsin State Capitol

Jerri Johnson, Kim Povey, Deb Fox and Diane Miller in Senate Chamber of the Massachusetts State House

National Health Freedom Action is supporting two Practitioner Exemption bills going forward during these unprecedented times: Wisconsin SB 492 and Massachusetts S.2634. These proactive, solution-oriented bills are needed to protect consumer access to unlicensed practitioners providing complementary health care services, including herbalists, traditional naturopaths, homeopaths, nutrition consultants, and many others. Wisconsin and Massachusetts are SO close to becoming the 12th and 13th Safe Harbor states!

New Staff member Julie Booras!

We are excited to introduce the latest addition to our team, Julie Booras.

Julie is passionate about health freedom rights and believes that each person should be free to make decisions about their own health and the health of their families without government interference. She believes in innate intelligence of the human body and that nature offers the the medicines we need to heal.

Julie brings her creative, marketing and entrepreneurial skills to the team and plans to be a loud voice in the movement to protect and defend our rights to bodily autonomy through education and legislative action.

Julie will be assisting with outreach and development, to ensure the financial stability and resources for the future for both NHFA and NHFC. We are excited to have Julie Booras join our team!
